THE MARK OF THE BEAST

RLJ-1741   JOHN S. TORELL   FEBRUARY 2, 2020

PART 4: BEAST CONTROL SYSTEM

One of the most dramatic events for the human race is going to take place during the reign of the Beast. There are only three verses in the Bible about this colossal event which Jesus says will affect the world's population. Revelation 13:16-18

I believe God purposely held back the technological development of humanity because electricity was not harnessed until the mid-1850s and one of its first uses was the telegraph. Our technology today is built upon electricity and we would be back to the horse and buggy without it.

It was difficult for Jesus to describe how this future control system worked to John because mankind's technology was too primitive. No one was able to figure what Jesus described until the human race entered the 20th century.

Since the time of Christ, all nations have endeavored to number their citizens for war and taxation purposes.

KING DAVID'S CENSUS TAKING

King David disobeyed God's command when he wanted to know how many soldiers he could muster. The only way such a census could be carried out was for his chief of staff to travel to every county in Israel and register all able bodied men. King David learned he had 1,100,000 men in Israel and 470,000 in Judah who could handle a sword. This census taking was done in person and recorded on scrolls. 1 Chronicles 21:1-5

THE ROMAN EMPEROR AUGUSTUS

Emperor Augustus wanted to make sure he could collect the maximum tax and that necessitated a census to register all the people in the Roman Empire. This coincided with the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem. The only way to accomplish this task was to set up registration centers and compel people to travel to their place of birth. Once all the centers reported to the emperor, the tabulation was recorded on scrolls, and these records were used by tax collectors in each district. Publicans were ordered to collect taxes and hunt down the non-paying on their list. Luke 2:1-5

CENSUS TAKING IN HISTORY

The kings of Sweden were no different and I want to share my perspective because I was born there. Each king used the state church to number the people. From around 1100 to 1500, the state sanctioned church was Roman Catholicism and it was the responsibility of the parish priests to keep written records of babies being born, marriages, and also to record the death of each person. They were also required to maintain records of where every family resided and the common people had to inform the priest if they moved to a different location. The records from the church were used to call up men for military service and for tax rolls.

When Gustav Vasa became king in 1528, he converted to the Lutheran faith and broke with Rome but the system of the church keeping records continues to this very day. The paper records are so well preserved that people researching genealogy can use the church records and go back to the 1300s.

The only weakness is that these were paper and ink records which could not be easily searched and sorted like modern computer records.

THE TABULATION MACHINE

The U.S. Constitution mandates a census every 10 years which is used among other things to determine the amount of representatives each state will have in congress. It was a very cumbersome project until Herman Hollerith got a job with the Census Bureau in 1879. He was the son of German immigrants and he began thinking about a machine that would utilize punch cards to tabulate data. By 1884 he had built a successful prototype and this became the forerunner to the computer.

Hollerith decided to lease his machines and they became an instant success with the federal government as well as the governments of Russia, Italy, England, France, Austria and Germany. The foreign governments were excited because they had data that could now be sorted into different categories, something that was previously very slow and labor intensive. If they were seeking a particular person, they could search the punch cards and the machine yielded results like a modern day search engine.

Charles Flint consolidated the Tabulating Machine Company in 1911 with three other companies to form Computing-Tabulating-Recording Company which was renamed International Business Machines Corporation (IBM) in 1924.

As technology kept developing in the world, engineers improved the tabulating machine until it became standard equipment for governments, militaries, hospitals, schools, businesses, etc. With the rapid development of the computer, the tabulating industry came to an end in the 1960s.

I remember when a businessman came to our church in 1977 and donated his system of tabulating machines. It filled up quite a bit of space in the warehouse we rented for the church and the man told me that we could use it for the ministry. However, upon examining the equipment, we decided it was already outdated and sold it for scrap.

THE MONSTER IS RELEASED

The different governments of the world became eager customers of IBM's tabulating machine. No previous monarch or dictator had previously had access to such a treasure trove of searchable information.

The hidden world government had been working to capture Russia and force communism on its people. They had also plans for Germany. By the time of the Bolshevik revolution in 1917, the Russian people had been cataloged through the tabulating system. Germany implemented the system long before World War I (1914-1918), and by the time Adolf Hitler was voted into the Reichstag, all its people were in the system. The pre-Nazi government included data on where people lived, medical records, and their religion.

People were like sitting ducks when the round-up started in Russia after 1917 and in Germany after 1935. The communist Cheka (later NKVD, KGB, FSB) knew exactly who they wanted to arrest and execute or send to labor camps. Some 20 million Russians were murdered and/or died in the Gulags.

Hitler used the Gestapo and the dreaded SS to round up dissidents, gypsies, mentally ill, Jehovah's Witnesses, and Jews. Arrests were always made between 2:00 to 3:00 AM in both the Soviet Union and Nazi Germany.

Once the Soviet Union enslaved Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Albania and East Germany after 1945, IBM tabulating machines were used to catalog and classify people. Each captive nation had its own dreaded secret police; the worst of them was the East German STASI.

Once the communists took control of China in 1949, IBM tabulating machines became a premium tool for the new régime and it is estimated the Mau Tse Tung ordered the murder of more than 80 million Chinese.

THE COMPUTER
Satan knew that he needed better equipment than tabulating machines for the coming global federation led by the Beast and the False Prophet. Tabulating machines served Adolf Hitler, Joseph Stalin, Mau Tse Tung, Benito Mussolini and other dictators in South America. It was necessary for mankind to advance beyond vacuum tubes in radios; humanity must possess the microchip to reach the next level. That milestone was reached in the 1947 with the Roswell UFO crash and technology transfer.

This new technology of integrated circuit boards, microchips, fiber optics, lasers, etc. were doled out to American research laboratories by the government and we can see how this technology was integrated with previous technology and mankind was suddenly moved into the electronic age.

SATELLITES
German rocket engineers like Werner von Braun worked to build rockets that became known as V-1 and V-2. The allies had nothing like it and these rockets rained fire and brimstone on London and other British cities for four years. When the war concluded in 1945, the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) the U.S. intelligence service brought hundreds of them to the United States to help set up a rocket industry. The Soviets also managed to get some German rocket specialists and they launched their first satellite, called Sputnik on October 4, 1957.

This infuriated the American political leadership and by 1969 the U.S. was able to achieve a lunar landing on the moon. Warfare now shifted as the Soviets and Americans built huge rockets equipped with multiple nuclear warheads. A new policy of mutual assured destruction (MAD) was developed. Both sides knew each nation would be totally destroyed if nuclear war broke out and no humans would be able to live in the radioactive aftermath.

Satan was interested in more than rockets; he wanted a global satellite system that could communicate to a central command post from any place on earth. The United States launched its first Global Positioning System (GPS) satellite in February of 1978 and there are now 31 of these satellites in orbit as of 2020. This is the system that is used by all GPS devices in the United States.

The U.S. military controls this system and can turn it off. Such was the case when India and Pakistan went to war in 1999 and India was blocked from using the system. The world took notice of this and today there are independent GPS systems in place from Russia, European Union, China, Japan and India.

There are also communication satellites used for television, telephone, radio, internet and military purposes. There are approximately 2,000 communication satellites orbiting the earth today. Many are placed some 22,000 miles above the earth and are stationary over the equator, making it possible for satellite dishes on earth to be in a fixed position. Some of these satellites are private, while others are owned by national governments. The first communication satellite was launched in 1960.

THE INTERNET

The idea to link computers to an international network came into being in 1962 when MIT computer scientist J.C. R. Licklider discussed the need for a global computer network. In 1969 Lawrence G. Roberts published a plan for a system called ARPANET, which was a forerunner to the current internet. Robert Kahn and Vinton Cerf collaborated to develop a protocol for linking multiple networks together in 1973

Dave Farber of the University of Delaware came up with the idea of using dial-up phone lines. It was implemented in 1982 and was known as the PhoneNet System. It was connected to ARPANET and the first commercial network called Telenet.

ARPANET was decommissioned in 1990. Tim Berners-Lee and his colleagues at CERN[1] developed hypertext markup language (HTML) and the uniform resource locator (URL), which gave the birth to the World Wide Web.

Microsoft launched the second version of its seminal operating system in 1995 and Amazon, Yahoo and eBay all unveiled their websites on the World Wide Web.

With this new innovation, people can communicate via email to any place on earth where there is internet access. This is a great step forward for intelligence services like the CIA, FSB, Mossad, MI6, etc., because they can access people's personal email and thus get personal information. In the old days, when people sent letters via the post office, agents had to be dispatched to a post office and read the mail before it was delivered.

NASTIONAL SECURITY ANGENCY (NSA)

The National Security Agency (NSA) is the biggest spy agency in the United States. It was created in 1952 and today it has some 40,000 employees with a classified budget. Its headquarters is in Washington D.C. and an enormous campus was built in the desert area of Utah. The site is used for data storage of the information the NSA has collected over the years. The complex had a price tag of $1.5 billion.

[1] The European Organization for Nuclear Research was founded in 1954 with its laboratories located on the border of France and Switzerland. There are 23 nations who own and operate this research center, staffed by 2,500 scientific technical and administration staff.

The data center collects and processes all electronic communication in the world, including email, phone calls, Internet searches, and information received from local law enforcement agencies and federal agencies. Any person living in the United States has a file at the NSA with personal information like arrest records, parking tickets, travel information, items purchased on the Internet, jobs, marriages, children, etc.

The NSA is the largest spy agency in the world as far as cataloging data on people and its program called PRISM, also known as SIGAD US-984XN. It collects data from search engines like Google and Yahoo and different social networks like Facebook and Twitter. It is also able to collect data from phone calls from AT&T, Verizon and other cell phone providers and operates under a FISA court (Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act) in Washington D.C.

THE MICROCHIP

Pets and certain farm animals are being equipped with a tiny microchip under their skin. These devices are passive and do not give out a signal; instead, a closely held scanner can read the radio-frequency identification (RFID) and the data can be copied from a microchip the size of grain of rice.

This microchip can store the name of the owner, address, the kind of animal, its name, visits to a veterinarian, whether the animal has been bred, etc. Once the chip has been programmed and inserted under the skin, the owner has to register it with the chip manufacturer, distributor or an independent recovery service. The owner receives a registration certificate with the chip ID, which serves to identify the animal if it is lost, and also functions as a title of ownership.

A number of nations now require all pets be chipped in such a manner. New Zealand has been doing this since 2006, North Ireland since 2012, and England followed suit in 2016. It is only a matter of time before all nations enable such policies.

BATTERY POWERED MICROCHIPS

As I discussed earlier, the microchips used in humans and animals are passive and can be read by a device that projects energy to the chip. There is another chip that is powered by a lithium battery, sending out a signal that is strong enough to be picked up by GPS satellites. The lithium battery does not need charging because temperature fluctuations in the body charge the battery.

In the future, humans will be chipped with a lithium powered microchip and monitored constantly via satellites. Once this system has come into play, it will be possible for the Antichrist to control every human being on earth who has taken the Mark of the Beast.

During the first Gulf War in 1990-1991, American soldiers were implanted with battery powered microchips to find out how effective satellites would be in tracing their movements.

Microchips today have the capacity to store 3,000 pages of documentation. This information can be accessed by satellites or by scanners hooked up to computers. A person's entire life history can be stored on a microchip including family history, education, marital status, number of children, employment history, military service records, medical records, property ownership, criminal records, etc.

MICROCHIPPING IN SWEDEN

Biohax International is a Swedish company and one of the leading providers of microchipping. Since 2015 some 5,000 Swedes have received a microchip from this company. The cost for implanting a chip is about $180 with the cost of the microchip being around $300.

In Sweden there are no private railroads. The railroad system is owned and operated by the Swedish state and it is called "Statens Jarnvagar." This state owned corporation offers travelers the option to have a chip installed so they don't have to buy tickets in the traditional sense. Just have your implanted chip scanned and your bank account or credit card will be automatically billed.

THREE SQUARE MARKET

In order not to miss any details, I am going to quote an article published by CNBC news, published August 13, 2017. This is a pre-cursor to what is going to happen during the reign of the Antichrist. It is optional now but in the future it will become mandatory.

> "A Wisconsin company is offering its workers the chance to toss their employee ID card and chuck all their passwords. If that sounds appealing—especially for people who frequently lose or forget those staples of modern-day office life – it comes with a catch.

> In exchange, each employee will insert a tiny microchip: Under their skin.

> As it happens, 50 of the 80 employees at Three Square Market, a provider of self-service break room vending machines, voluntarily agreed to be "chipped." Those employees appeared to brush aside many of the concerns shaping this debate since it began.

> "It is really convenient having the chip in your hand with all the things it can do," Three Square Market CEO Todd Westby told CNBC's "On the Money" in an interview recently.

> "If you're a technology company, things like this are actually exciting," Westby said. "We don't look at it as being too weird. We initially decided to do it just because we thought it was…I guess you could say 'cool, something different'."

> On August 1st, the River Falls, WI company held a "chip party," where many employees let the company insert a $300 microchip, the size of a grain of rice, into their hand between the thumb and forefinger.

MICROCHIP PRODUCTION

There are a number of American companies mass producing microchips and researching more powerful chips and how to integrate them with lithium batteries. Here are some of them:

- ❖ VeriChip Corporation, Delray Beach, Florida
- ❖ Trimble, Inc., Sunnyvale, California
- ❖ Destron Fearing Corporation, Dallas/Fort Worth Airport, Texas

❖ Texas Instruments, Inc., Dallas, Texas

❖ Bio Medic Data Systems, Seaford, Delaware

❖ Semtech Corporation. Camarillo, California

ALL PIECES ARE IN PLACE

What Jesus described to John in chapter 13 of the Book of Revelation is a reality today. All banks in the world are connected electronically through the internet and New York and London have become the centers of all banking. What happens when a person writes a check to pay a bill? It is taken to a bank, which has a processing center where clerks electronically collect money from the bank that issued the check. Checks are usually cleared in 24 hours.

All banks today are connected to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and each transaction is stored for future reference. Almost no financial transactions today can be carried out except forms are filed with DHS.

All nations, with the exception of some third world countries, register new born babies and they are given some kind of identification number. In the United States it is a social security number. Most transactions require such an ID number. It is impossible in the U.S. to open a bank account without a social security number, get a driver's license, purchase a home, buy a car, etc. You cannot get a passport without a social security number nor can you fly domestically without one.

TOTAL CONTROL SYSTEM

Almost all nations exercise total control over their citizens today. People have gotten used to this system and think nothing about it. All the pieces are in place once Satan decides to set up the Antichrist system. Here is what is going to happen:

1. There will be some catastrophic event of such a magnitude that the nations of the world will be forced to give up their sovereignty and yield to a world government system. At the forefront will be a brilliant Jewish political leader, who will exhibit supernatural power and promise to solve the crisis.

   It is interesting that the Peace Deal presented revealed by President Trump on January 29, 2020 was designed by Jared Kushner. Kushner is his Jewish son-in-law and a member of the Kabbalistic Chabad synagogue system.

2. This newly unelected charismatic world leader will successfully direct all efforts to solve the crisis. As a result, the world's population is going to revere him as a savior. He will institute a new global electronic currency and abolish cash.

3. Banking will be easy using credit and debit cards. Unemployment will go down and people will prosper like never before.

4. A new temple will be built in Jerusalem and the world leader will set up his office in a new palace that is built for him and his government.

5. The inauguration of the temple will be shown on live television, but once the dedication begins, this charismatic leader will do something strange as he enters the holy of holies, sits down in the mercy seat and declares he is god. The shock of this announcement will reverberate throughout the world.

6. A devout Jew will assassinate this man for his blasphemy. This "savior" will be resurrected after three days by the power of Satan. This is when he will demand worship of all people on the earth.

7. At this time, two prophets will show up outside the palace of the Antichrist and torment him for 3.5 years. These two men will be fearless and invincible for 1,260 days. This is going to anger Satan and the Beast, but they will be powerless as God openly mocks the Antichrist system, hurting the credibility of the Beast and the power of Satan. They will be killed when God removes their protection but then they will subsequently be resurrected after 3.5 days and taken to heaven.

8. The credibility of the Beast is tarnished since he could not kill the two prophets during the previous 3.5 years and now Satan will raise up another beast called the False Prophet. He will take over the governing of the earth and one of his first moves will be to set up the Mark of the Beast. No man will be able to buy or sell unless they are part of this microchip-based financial system

Any person who wishes to receive this microchip must take an oath to the Beast and the Devil. You won't be able to carry out any financial transaction without this status symbol and you will be forced out of society. The majority of the world's population will take the Mark of the Beast.

I predict that pastors will also open their churches to make it more convenient for church members to take this mark of loyalty.

Any person taking the Mark of the Beast is condemned to the Lake of Fire. This applies to any Christian as well; you will forfeit your salvation! Revelation 14:9-13

Remember, it's not so important how you begin your life after salvation, but how you finish it!

Do you have an ear to hear with?
